JOHN BULL'S HOUSE sett in FLAMES

John Bull's house in flames. to whom is this crying?

That's what we're to tell you. There look at them blowing

New last Land is done for, and all the worlds going.

Let them pull with Stinkpots, these Blasters are Pitt.

For we're true English Cocks, & we will keep our PITT.

He's our Helmsman the Tarrs cry, So, So, have him higher,

Steady, Steady. I warrant he puts out the Fire.

From Some folks, & some how, See Reynard has stripp'd.

Tally O, hark to Boot-y. See Some body's Stripp'd.

This is done for full-filling the Scripture no Doubt.

For naked we came in Good Lord, & naked we Go out.

This Scene crys Ettrious all seems Surpass'd.

'Tis Taste I find for Folks to Show their Alikes.

But how came these Flames? - I was told by a Scout

In the Welch Ladys Bed Room at first they broke out.

In the Stewards some say, was the first Smoke & Smoke

For some will say one thing, and some say another

Some talk that the Bellows man first had a sight on.

Blow it up. - and then run away by the Light on.

There's rare Help you see though, on Noncot John's side.

Behold who we wanted a Top for a GUIDE.

Come Countrymen Come your Bucketfuls pour in.

Make room for Jacks Friends, we must have some more in.

Attend with your Engines, All hands Labour hearty.

Save, Save, John Bulls House. Quench the Fire of Party.
