to judge of the merits of literary compositions.
Your novel is richer than a thousand pieces of gold, so that every one strives to be forward in calling you his Poet. In the treatment of every disease you do not trouble one into two opinions, that all agree that you are a Bong-Hung (a celebrated physician of the Chao Dynasty). Those who have read when your letters first came to full growth (i.e. gentlemen of taste and learning) to that your name of acclaimed Poet is thrown by attainable friends, and when you have ascend the curtain of the inner appointment with whom do you associate? But your own
