983 THROUGH THE EYES OF A HUMORIST

983 through the eyes of a humorist is an honest attempt on the part of the authors to present in its true perspective the more important events in the life of the company.

We want this to be a more or less factual history of the camp without it becoming merely a presentation of facts and figures which would be so dry that very few would read it with pleasure.

It is our contention that any serious question is replete with humorous points and situations. Conversely any humorous event has its serious side and situation. We have concerned ourselves with the humorous side of the question with the hope that you dear folks would see it in its true perspective, remembering that camp life, the same as life in general, presents a little humor, a little heartache, and a lot of just plain monotonous living.
In the wee small hours of the morning of May 5, 1933 a mild panic arrived at the depot in Fort Lewis, Washington. A train load of young men and rough necks had come from Walla Walla, Benton, Yakima, and Kittitas Counties. They were the first CCC's in the Fort Lewis District. They were fed rather hurriedly on their arrival and escorted to a large village of tents and issued blankets and bed ticks.

When the lads rose the next morning they were assembled on the parade grounds and put under the charge of Lieutenant Hanley and Sergeants Hodian and Novak. The boys from Yakima County found themselves in Company 934 with other boys from Cowlitz County. For a period of two weeks the boys were put through calisthenics, and worked taking down tents and setting them up again, and moving rock from one side of the road to the other in order to toughen them up for life in the woods. During this time they were given their shots and vaccinated.

Then came the order that Lt. Hanley was to stay at Fort Lewis to organize and take to the mountains a Company 983 while Company 934 was to go under a different command and go into the woods. The boys, rather than to lose Lt. Hanley, cast a vote among themselves and by some means got the Company number changed from 934 to 983, thus retaining Lt. Hanley as Company Commander. This is how Company 983 came into existence. There is no Company 934.
The orders finally came through to move to a site in Pleasant Valley, near Mineral, Washington. At three o'clock on the morning of May 24, 1933 they were rolled out amid the rush and huror of getting things started on the way. A convoy of army trucks carried them here to Pleasant Valley. Of course there was much talk and everybody was wondering about Pleasant Valley and Mineral, Washington. About two thirty that afternoon they stopped wondering. It was raining and the wind was blowing when they turned off onto one of the roughest roads they had ever seen. The boys even had to unload their blankets, barracks bars, and suit cases and help push the trucks. Lt. Hanley had in some way acquired a horse and was riding up and down the line of men encouraging them. Most of the boys were depressed. Their spirits were damp and so was the weather.

After three and six tenths miles of hard work through lots of mud the boys came at last to the camp site that was to be their home and found nothing except stumps. Then they set to work putting up tents, unloading trucks, and establishing a temporary mess hall. At ten thirty everybody turned in and at two o'clock they were awakened by the arrival of the truck with straw for their ticks.

The next morning all went down to the creek flowing through the valley to secure water for the kitchen and other purposes. All that day was spent in establishing the camp more securely and by night the CCC camp at Mineral was a fact.
In October, 1933, the War Department decided that we were to stay here during the winter. So we hired a bunch of men and they built us a camp. You should have seen them.
In June, 1934, Lieutenant Schill became our Company Commander and things began to happen. In July a new bunch of seventy-eight men came from Tooma. This bunch included our cartoonist, hence most of our dope dates from then on.
Here we have the Tacoma boys on their way to camp. You will notice that they did not know much about it at that time. We think they can tell you all about it now.
The boys are getting their stuff. It looks as if they did not know what to do with it.
This is the way the boys look early in the morning. We suppose you have all been in a saw mill and know what it sounds like. We don't feel that we should name the barracks as there is a great deal of pride in the matter and we don't wish to hurt anyone's feelings. Anyway we can not run very fast.
The bell rings at 6:15 am. There is quite a hullabaloo until they all get their faces washed. It is really quite a sight to see two hundred boys all trying to wash their faces at once. You see most of them don't get out of bed until it is time to wash then there is a grand rush.
The Mess bell rings at 6.45, then the gang falls to, at a job where there are no gold bricks, not of course that we have any but, then we are sure there are none at this one.
Sick call at 7:15 and the gold bricks, the sick lame and lazy all go over to the infirmary, to see if they can talk Doc. out of a day's work. It's a hard job, this picking sheep from the goats, but you can see that Doc. does it with great success.
At 7.40 we have Police call, which some unkind critics have designated as snipe hunting. Really we protest for most of the boys are not hunting snipes, but instead are hunting for a successful method of avoiding the duty of finding one. We wish you would notice the cheerful attitude some of the boys display.
As soon as the boys have successfully hidden themselves work call is sounded and all the boys line up. Here is where we shine 983 on parade.
At 745 the boys hit the trucks and beat it for the work project.
The mess bell rings at 6.45; then the gang falls to work.
One of the first things the boys learn in their work in the woods is that they can't smoke on the job. But boys will be boys so appropriate rest periods are arranged for the purpose of smoking during these periods the Forestry Foreman talks to them about their job, Fire Prevention etc.; Friendly informal discussions which help to build moral. Not only do these talks help the camp but they are real instruction, helping the boy to become a better man.
At noon the whole bunch eats on the job. Some build a fire and make coffee, and others dig out the sanwiches. Then the whole bunch dig out the old army meat can, and again the gold bricks hold up their end. Bull sessions arguments, friendly scaffels some, drop their mess kits cageretts, until 12.45 then back to work until 3.30.
At 3.30 the boys all pile into the trucks and are brought back to camp. It is always easy to find the gold bricks, for they are first in the truck, and they are doing a lot more joking than those who have worked all day.
At 4:30 mail call, and the boys go into a huddle over the merits of their various girls. This keeps up until chow at 5:00. Mail Call would not be mail call without Garney Yukeet, Stritmatter, Marsh and George Busse getting a letter. Then Simpson must he in line to crack jokes and ask for his letter which has not arrived yet.
After chow there are letters to write, lies to tell, games to play, in fact any of the things a red-blooded American boy can do are done. The baseball team must be mentioned: catchers, Humphrey,
Buckmeyer, and Triggs; pitchers, Hathany, Hopkins,
Coghlan; first base, Thompson, Reichl; second base,
Graves, and Lund; third, Arle; short, Bruce; field,
Monson, Shearer, Schult, and Yuckert.
Then at 8:00 p.m. school begins. You can take what you want or nothing. It is up to you. Most of the boys take one or more subjects more or less (mostly less) seriously. Then to bed.
Sidelights on Camp Life

If you have followed us this far I am certain you can not help but feel that we have left out many things which go to make one group of men different from any other. At least that is the way we feel so we are going to give you a few pages of different things that help to make 983 different.

The boys find that even in the dryest weather swamps are disagreeable to work in.
Sunday, August 2nd 3rd was a very warm day. Barracks Two decided to spend the day all dressed up in their birthday clothes.

Chet Jenkins thought Nue man was someone else and Nue man thought someone else was after him so they both left on high.

Nue man must be a very cold boy for we find him ready for bed with boots and an overcoat on.

"Yurk" Hilton was mad at Louis Walker. Anyway who ever heard of a green-eyed wop?

Nile Crepin must have thought he was the whole army. Any way he managed to be standing at attention in the latrine, bathhouse and infirmary one right after the other.
What prominent K.P. is called Powder Puff and why? Ask Guy Grimm. And how did they get the powder puffs?

What did Dad McDavid mean when he said his legs never went to sleep?

Has Hoppy found out yet why the water got so cold in the shower house the other night? Hoppy, ask Spiering.

Why did Marvin climb into the rafters with appropriate remarks.
MY LEGS DON'T GO TO SLEEP!

"DAD" McCODAVI.

DON'T PLAY AROUND WITH MARVIN. MARVIN DOESN'T WANT TO PLAY.

OFF HOT HEH HEH.

WHAT IS COLD!
Jimmie Graves must have taken those lessons on inhaling cigar smoke very seriously, judging by his expression.

Does Spiering always talk in his sleep or was he trying to kid the boys the other night? I think maybe he thought the boys were still wandering around on the mountain side.

How come Juzeler almost missed his dinner when "them" walked out of the bath house?

We understand that Spiering was out late or something, anyway he was unable to find his candle so he borrowed a flashlight to find it.
BOYS—PLEASE DON'T GR-R-R! LEAVE ME.

WHERE'S MY PANTS? DING DONG THEM

WHERE THE HECK IS THAT CANDLE

UZELA
Palmer Westad mixed with Bob Frazier and Westad's explanation was that he was talking when he should have been listening.

Guy Grimm entertains the neighboring beauties. Perhaps this helps to explain the Powder Puffs.

Just what was the argument that Ben and Bill were trying to settle when they tore each other's clothing off?
It seems our popular Supply Sergeant had a bad tooth so he called in Doctor Le For. We are not sure where the pliers came from but we have heard rumors that a pair was finally located in the Forestry Blacksmith shop.

Russ Engman went to a dance and got confused. The results were funny. Russ is a good egg and he laughed just as hard as the rest of us.

We hear that James Hill and Bob Triggs missed the truck and spend the night in a barn. Triggs said it was awfully cold.
Fire Call

All out and what a grand rush it is. Clarence Workman, our fire chief, almost got killed in the rush the first time. After that he always stayed out of the way until the boys had settled down a little.

First it is out of bed. Some of the boys are still asleep. Others are rushing into their clothes. A couple got all mixed up in the Isle.
Bring blankets and mess gear is the call. Everyone grabs his blanket or his neighbor's, looks for his mess gear and rushed for the truck. There are some blankets that insist on unrolling and flapping on the ground. Some of the boys did drop their mess kits. There seems to be lots of confusion, but—effing also.
The trucks are loaded and the boys are on the way to another fire. Twenty-five or sixty men away in ten to twenty minutes which proves that the confusion was only in appearance. The boys of 963 are not confused. Though excitement reigns supreme, it sounds more like a football crowd cheering than boys going into serious and sometimes dangerous work.
The members of Company feel proud of their record as fire fighters in the woods. They went out on sixteen fires and conquered every one of them. Often they had a tough battle to subdue the blaze but in the end the answer was the same—fire reported dead & out.
Feeding the crew "Wimpie's Greasy Spoon". We feel that the greasy spoon made history. Wimpie came back the most popular cook in the outfit and the boys came back happy. Two very important things in camp life.
Jimmie Graves, the Alarm Clock. It seems that Jimmie has at last found his vocation, that of disturbing the rest of the boys on the job. Cap Jones decided that he would make use of this peculiar personality of his and put him to work dragging the boys from their slumbers.
We came, we saw, we conquered, but unlike Caesar we have sense enough to come home, bringing our bruises with us. And the sleepy ones will now have a chance to rest up. Maybe if we don’t have to go out on another fire at 3:30 a.m. in the morning.
We feel that no history of this camp could be complete without "Little Sweden" having a page all by itself. The crew from Washington wants to let you boys know that you have done more to make us believe Minnesota is in the U.S.A. than all the histories we have ever read.

We wish you luck, you bunch of Swedes with German, Irish, English, and Jewish names and faces mixed up in your group. More power to you.

1. Pete Schultz—The Swede with the map of Holland painted on his face.
2. Earl Adams—You might call him Swede but it did not show.
3. Sulo Sinervo—The same kind of a Swede as Pavo Narmi.
4. Ray Jaskowiak—Swedish name as Yugo-Slovakia.
5. Charles Mulally—St. Patrick was the same type of Swede as this boy.
6. Gugie Meacham—Is a Swede from the country whose capital is London.
7. Yale Weinstein—A big Swede from Jerusalem.
8. Myron Ostrander—And he is partly from the Emerald Isle.
9. Harry Hosebrook—Another of George the Fifth—subjects.
10. Herman Arle—Swede just like Paul Von Hindenburg.
11. Gordon Wyatt—King Edward of England said he wished all his subjects were Sweedish just like this boy.
Memo of Orders

He must not forget to send a copy of the Annual to the three firms, Minesite, all of our mineral foremen, Dr. Johnston, Pres. Roosevelt, Director of Schools, and Mr. Jimmie Graves. Also to Miss Selina Johnson Mineral.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This cartoon history of Company 983 at Camp Mineral, Washington is a project of the Educational Department.

We wish to acknowledge with deep appreciation the interest, encouragement, and cooperation of Lt. Harvey B. Schill, whose aid and assistance made its issue possible.

Thanks are due also to James M. Graves for helping with material and information about the earlier days of the camp; to La Verne C. Linden, who did the typing, stencil cutting, and mimeograph work; and also to many of the other members of the company whose interest, suggestions, and labor has been most helpful.

In the wee small hours of the morning of May 5, 1933, a trainload of young men had come from Walla Walla, Benton, Yakima, and Kittitas Counties. They were the first CCCs in Fort Lewis District. During this time they were given their shots and vaccinated.

Then came the order that Lt. Hanley was to stay at Fort Lewis to organize and take to the mountains a Company 983 while Company 934 was to go under a different command and go into the woods. The boys, rather than to lose Lt. Hanley, case a vote among themselves and by some means got the Company number changed from 934 to 983, thus retaining Lt. Hanley as commanding officer. This is how Company 983 came into existence.

The orders finally came through to move to a site in Pleasant Valley near Mineral, Washington. At three o’clock on the morning of May 24, 1933 they were rolled out amid the rush and hurley of getting things started on the way. A convoy of army trucks carried them here to Pleasant Valley. Of course there was much talk and everybody was wondering about Pleasant Valley and Mineral, Washington. About two-thirty that afternoon they stopped wondering. The boys even had to unload their barracks bags, blankets, and suit cases and help push the trucks. Lt. Hanley had somehow acquired a horse and was riding up and down the line of men encouraging them. Most of the boys were depressed. Their spirits were damp and so was the weather.

After three and six tenths miles of hard work through lots of mud the boys came to last to the camp site that was to be their home and found nothing except stumps. They then set to work putting up tents, unloading trucks, and establishing a temporary mess hall. At ten thirty everybody turned in and at two o’clock they were awakened by the arrival of the truck with the straw for their ticks.

The next morning all went down to the creek flowing in the valley to secure water for the kitchen and other purposes. All that day was spent in establishing the camp more securely and by night the CCC camp at Mineral was a fact.
In October, 1933, the War Department decided that we were to stay here during the winter. So some men were hired and they built us a camp. You should have seen them go.

They started on Barrack Four and worked toward Barrack One. As fast as one crew finished the foundations another laid the floor. As soon as the floor was laid a third crew put up the studdings. Inside of two days all barracks were in course of construction and the whole camp was finished in jig time.

In June, 1934, Lieutenant Schill became our Commanding Officer and then things began to happen. In July a group of 78 men came from Tacoma, Washington. In this group was our cartoonist, Karl A. Linder. Hence most of our detailed history dates from then.
Here we have the Tacoma boys on their way to camp. You will notice that they did not know much about it at the time. We think they can tell you about it now, though.

The boys are getting their clothing and equipment. It looks as if they do not know what to do with it. Rookies are the same everywhere—rushed hither and yon—falling all over their clothing and equipment—yelling at each other—being sent on strange errands by the "vets", etc.
This is the way the boys look early in the morning. We suppose you have all been in a sawmill and know what it sounds like. We don't feel that we should name the barracks because there is a great deal of pride in the matter. We do not want to hurt anybody's feelings because we can not run very fast.

The rising call is at 6:45 a.m. Then there is quite a hullabaloo until everyone gets his face washed. It is really quite a sight to see two hundred boys all trying to wash at once.
The mass bell rings at 6:15 a.m. Then the gang falls to a job where there are no goldbricks. Not that we have any, but we are sure there are none at chow.

Sick call comes at 7:15 a.m. The goldbricks, the sick, the lame, and the lazy go over to the infirmary to see if they can talk Doc out of a day's work. It's a hard job to pick the sheep from the goats, but you can see that Doc does it with great success.
At 7:30 a.m. we have Police Call which some unkind critics designate as 'Snipe Hunting.' Really we protest for most of the boys are not hunting snipes but instead are hunting for a successful method of avoiding the duty of finding one. We wish you would notice the cheerful attitude some of the boys display.

Police Call lasts until the boys have all successfully hidden themselves. Then Work Call is sounded at 7:45 a.m. and everybody lines up. Here is where we shine. 385 on parade!
After the work call we hit it for the trucks and beat it for the work project.

Some wit has called us "Wooden Soldiers", but our record shows we have built miles of road, trail, and telephone lines, numerous fire lookout towers, and a ranger station. If this is the work of "Wooden Soldiers" we claim it is "Ironwood."
One of the first things the boys learn in the woods is that they cannot smoke on the job. But boys will be boys so appropriate rest periods are arranged for the purpose of smoking. During these times the Forestry Foremen talk to them about their jobs, fire prevention, and lead friendly informal discussions which help to build morale. Not only do these talks help the camp but they are a real instruction helping the boy become a better man.

At noon the crews eat on the job. Some of the boys build a fire and make coffee, and others dig out the sandwiches. Then the good old army mess kits are brought forth and again the old bricks hold up their end. Bull sessions, arguments, friendly scuffles, and smoking hold away until 12:45 p.m. Then back to work.
After the work day is over we pile into the trucks again and return to camp at 4:00 p.m. It is always easy to find the goldbricks because they are the first on the truck. They are doing a lot more talking and joking than those who have worked all day.

At 4:30 p.m. comes Mail Call. Then each of us go into a huddle with ourselvess—if we heard from home, or the girl friend. Mail Call would not be Mail Call without Carney, Yukan, Strittmatter, Marsh, and George Busey getting a letter. Then, too, Simpson must be in line to crack jokes and ask for his letter which has not arrived yet. This continues until the Dinner Call rings at 5:00 p.m.
After school there are letters to write, lies to tell, games to play, and any of the things a red-blooded American boy can do are done. The baseball team must be mentioned: catchers, Buckmeyer and Triggs; pitchers, Matheny, Hopkins, and Coghlan; first base, Thompson, and Reichl; second base, Graves, and Lund; third base; Short, Able; field, Cable, Monson, Sihvonen, Schult, and Tuckert.

For the small boy school begins in the morning, but for the CCC boy it is in the evening. Another difference in the CCC school is that you can take what you want, or not. It is up to you. Most of the boys take one or more subjects, more or less. Then to bed and our day is over.
SIDELIGHTS OF CAMP LIFE.

If you have followed us this far, we are certain you can not help but feel that we have left out many things which go to make one group of men different from any other. At least that is the way we feel, so we are going to give you a few pages of Sidelights that help to make 995 different.

The boys find that even in the driest weather, swamps are disagreeable places to work in.

(Upper left corner) Sunday, August 2, 1931, was a very warm day so Barrack Two decided to spend the day all dressed up in their birthday clothes.

(Upper right corner) Philip Nueman must be a very cold boy for we see him ready for bed with boots and overcoat on. "Turk" Hilton was angry with Louis Walker. Anyway, whoever heard of a green-eyed boy?

(Lower left corner) Creator Jenkins thought Philip Nueman was someone else and Nueman thought someone else was after him so they both left on high.

(Lower right corner) Riley Croppin must have thought he was the whole army. Anyway he managed to be standing at attention in the latrine, bath house, and Infirmary one right after the other during the General's inspection.
(Upper left corner) What prominent K.P.'s was called "Powder Puffs" and why? Ask Guy Grimm. And how did they get the powder puffs?

(Upper right corner) Has "Happy" found out yet why the water was so cold in the shower house the other night? He might ask Spiering.

(Lower left corner) What did "Dad" McDavid mean when he said his legs never went to sleep?

(Lower right corner) Why did Marvin climb into the rafters with appropriate remarks?

(Upper left corner) Jimmie Graven must have taken those lessons on inhaling cigar smoke very seriously to judge by his expression.

(Upper right corner) Does Spiering talk in his sleep, or was he trying to kid the boys the other night? Maybe he thought the boys were still wandering around on the mountainside.

(Lower left corner) Walt Lutz, Mess Sergeant, asked Sidney Rogers if he could dress a chicken. Rogers replied, "Not on thirty dollars a month." We wonder what he meant.

(Lower right corner) We understand that Spiering was out late or something was amiss. Anyhow he was unable to find his candle so he borrowed a flashlight to aid him in the search.
MY LEGS DON'T GO TO SLEEP!

DON'T PLAY AROUND WITH MARVIN! MARVIN DOESN'T WANT TO PLAY RAFTER.

BOYS—PLEASE DON'T LEAVE ME. GR-R-R!

WHERE THE HELL IS THAT CANDLE?
(Upper left corner) It seems that our popular supply sergeant, Wilson, had a bad tooth so he called in Dr. Le For. We are not sure where the pliers came from, but we have heard rumors to the effect that a pair was finally located in the Forestry Blacksmith Shop.

(Upper right corner) Russell Engman went to a dance and got confused. The results were funny. Russ is a good egg, and he laughed just as hard as the rest of us.

(Lower left corner) We hear that Wendel Moore brought the cat from Mineral to Doty after quite a struggle. We would like to give you his remarks on the subject but we have no asbestos paper.

(Lower right corner) We understand that James Hill and Robert Triggs missed the truck back to camp and spent the night in a barn. Triggs said it was awfully cold in there.
In every group of men there are always those who stand out from the crowd. They may be foreman, nightwatchman, or what not. 953 has them and here they are.

Bob Chapman, Nightwatchman. Everyone likes Bob.
George McGray, Foreman.
August Slenkamp, Foreman.
Danny Farmer, Foreman.
Henry Eldrekin, Assistant Superintendent.
Walter Hopgood, Cat Driver.
Art Morris, Foreman.
Carl Bjulund, Foreman.
Ralph Castman, Cat Driver.
Clarence Workman, Foreman.

Charles E. O'Brien, Senior Leader. Head man.
William Wilson, Supply Steward. Ask him about regulations.
Thomas "Tex" Benton, Truckmaster. Where are those horses?
Danny Mikulick, Cook. "Oh, for a chicken ranch!"
Frank R. Frazier, Leader, carpenter.
Roy C. Lemhert, Assistant Leader, O.T. truck driver.
Fred Marion, Leader, runs a crew.
Thomas Johnson, Assistant Leader, carpenter.
Dewey Hay, Leader, truck repairman.
FIRE CALL

All out! And what a grand rush it is. Clarence Workman, our Fire Chief, almost got killed in the rush the first time. After that he always stayed out of the way until the boys had settled down a little.

First it is out of bed. Some of the boys are still asleep. Others are rushing into their clothes. A couple got all mixed up in the aisle. Some fell out of the top bunk. Everyone wants to know where the fire is this time.

Bring blankets and mess kits, is the order. Everyone grabs his blankets, or his neighbors, looks for his mess kit and rushes for the truck. There are some blankets that insist on unrolling and flapping on the ground. Some of the boys drop their mess kits. There seems to be a lot of confusion but--------
---the trucks are loaded and the boys are on their way to another fire, twenty-five, fifty, or sixty strong. This goes to prove that the seeming confusion was just the hustle and bustle of trained fire fighters going to work. The average time to get the boys on the way to the fire from the time the fire call was given was usually about twenty-minutes. Though excitement reigned supreme it sounds more like a football crowd cheering than boys going into serious and sometimes dangerous work.

During the month of August the fires were at their worst. Company 983 answered no less than sixteen fire calls, each of which lasted from one day to three weeks, and required from five to one hundred sixty men. These blazes ranged in size from one acre upwards to one thousand acres. Some of the fires were more than fifty miles from camp and in almost inaccessible places. Sometimes the only road was a mere trail and oftimes the trucks had to ford small creeks. But no matter how small or how large, or how small they were, we conquered them all.
Feeding the crew at "Wimpy's Greasy Spoon". We feel that the Greasy Spoon made history. Frank "Wimpy" Mulley came back the most popular cook in the outfit, and the boys came back happy. These are two very important things in camp life.

Jimmie Graves, the "Alarm Clock". It seems that Jimmie has at last found his vocation, that of disturbing the rest of the boys on the job. Capt. Jones decided that he would make use of this peculiar personality of Jimmie's and put him to work dragging the boys from their slumber.
We came, we saw, we conquered, but unlike Caesar we had sense enough to come back to home bringing our bruises with us. The sleepy ones now will have a chance to rest up--maybe--if we don't have to go out on another fire at 3:30 a.m.

SIDELIGHTS AT THE FIRES.

We understand that some of the water was alive. Any- way one of the boys pulled a small fish out of his mouth. He claimed it came out of the water, but we wonder if it is just another fish story.

James Collins forgot to take his tooth brush with him so he pressed a G.I. brush into service.

Some of the boys found a wild bee tree. Then the bees found them. Ask them about honey.

"Hermit" Coble forgot to wash his face. When called on it he explained that it was a sun tan.

"Stinky" Davis is trying to make a collection of what? Oh anything. Here we see him trying to make off with a spar tree.

Philip Nebelkopf couldn't make the grade. The hill was too steep.
Some fellows were sent out with grub for the boys on the fire. They forgot their compass and consequently got lost. They spent the night almost in sight of the fire but never found it.

Russ Bagman, Evan Humphrey, and Chet Jenkins warmed for the boys one evening. Must have been good for we have not heard a kick.

Fires are not all work. Here we see some of the boys cooling off a bit.

Hale Creppin was sent out as first aid man. He must have misunderstood his duties because he spent a large part of his time asleep under a bush.

Company 983 has an orchestra. Humphrey, Bagman, Banks, and Jenkins surely made the rafters ring. When they went on their trip they took "Turk" Hilton along as master-of-ceremonies, and Collins as joke artist. They surely brought down the houses at each place where they played. It was really a good show, wasn't it boys?
We feel that no history of this camp could be complete without "Little Sweden" having a page all by itself. The crew from Washington want to let you boys know that you have done more to make us believe Minnesota is in the good old U. S. A. than all the histories we have ever read.

We wish you luck, you "Swedes" with German, Irish, English, and Jewish names and faces. More power to you.

1. Peter Schuft; the Swede with the map of Holland painted on his face.

2. Earl Adams; you might call him a Swede, but it does not show.

3. Sulo Sihvonen; the same type of Swede as Paavo Nurmi.

4. Raymond Jaskowski; a Swede the same as Yugoslavia.

5. Charles Muldoy; the same kind of a Swede as St. Patrick.

6. Roger Meachem; a Swede from the country whose capital is London.

7. Yale Weinstein; a big Swede from Jerusalem.

8. Myron Cistrander; a Swede partly from the Emerald Isle.

9. Harry Mosebrook; another of King George V's subjects.

10. Herman Arle; a Swede just like Paul Von Hindenburg.

11. Gordon Wyatt; King Edward of England said he wished all his subjects were Swedish just like this boy.
CONCLUSION

During the month of October, 1934, we received orders to move to Camp Dotty, Washington. So on the twenty-fourth, we packed up bag and baggage and left dear old Camp Mineral. We left the grounds and buildings, but brought you in our memories. To those of our friends who have followed us through these pages we also bid adieu. We hope you have enjoyed these memories.

When you are older and swamped with care and woe, glance through these pages and live in retrospect once again the good old days in the CCC's in Company 963 at Mineral, Washington.
