All hail to thee! Walt Whitman! Poet, Prophet, Priest!
Celebrant of Democracy! At more than regal feast
To thee we offer homage, and with our greenest bays
We crown thee Poet Laureate in these thy length'ning days.
We offer choice ascriptions—our loyal tribute bring,
In this the new Olympiad in which thou reignest king.
Poet of the present age, and of ages yet to be,
In this the chosen homestead of those who would be free—
Free from feudal usage, from courtly sham and cant;
Free from kingscraft, priestcraft, with all their rot and rant!
Prophet of a race redeemed from all conventual thrall,
Espous’d of equal sexship in body, soul, and all!
Priest of a ransom’d people, endowed with clearer light;
A newer dispensation for those of psychic sight.
We greet thee as our mentor, we meet thee as our friend,
And to thy ministrations devotedly we lend
The aid that comes from sealty which thou hast made so strong,
Thro’ touch of palm, and glint of eye, and spirit of thy song.
We magnify thy mission, we glorify thy aim,
Unfalteringly adhered to through ill-report and blame—
The fretting of the groundlings, the fumings of the pit,
The jibes and jeers and snarks and sneers which men mistake for wit.
We knew the rising splendor of thy sun could never wane
Until, the earth encompass’d, it sank in dazzling flame.
In faith assured we waited as in patience thou didst wait,
Knowing full well the answer must sooner come or late.
And come it has, sufficingly, the discord disappears,
Until to-day again is heard the music of the spheres
Proclaiming thee the well-beloved, peer of the proudest peers.
