Spring Garden
Friday Apr. 25.
1800

My dear Miss Hayman,

You must think me
most unpardonably neglectful, if you have not known how sufficient an apology I have for not having complied with your desire, in the illness of Miss S. which has really disabled me from thinking upon any other subject, & ~~excuses~~ quite desirably me for giving the advice which which you wish me to give you.

Today's account is, I am going to-day, not such as to set my mind much more at ease. If ~~these~~ should be any favourable change by tomorrow, I will call upon you to-morrow before the hour that you mention: but if I do not come, pray do not attribute to any want of desire to be of any use or comfort to you - and let me know at what other time I can see you.

Yours most sincerely
J. C.
